

Corporations are no different from world and life in general. Striving to service excellence but disconnected in actions from their goals and needs, struggling with limitations of mind and understanding, hostage to hierarchies and cultures, driven by technologies and infrastructure without humanity and unaware of history and future.

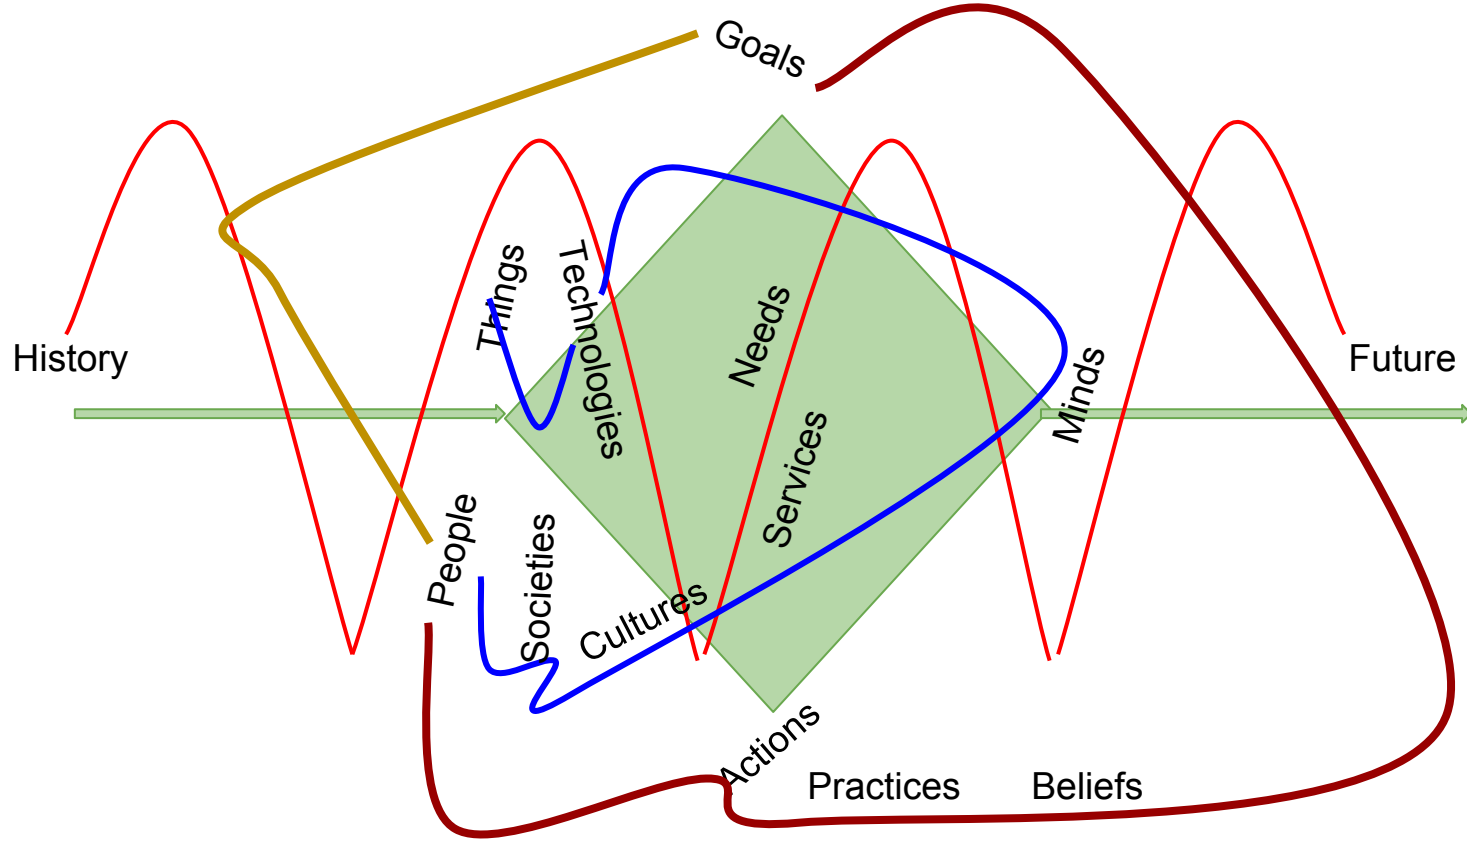

As organizations are unaware of history and future, the arc of history bends and twists impacting all services, needs, goals, actions and creates disturbed minds and workforce.

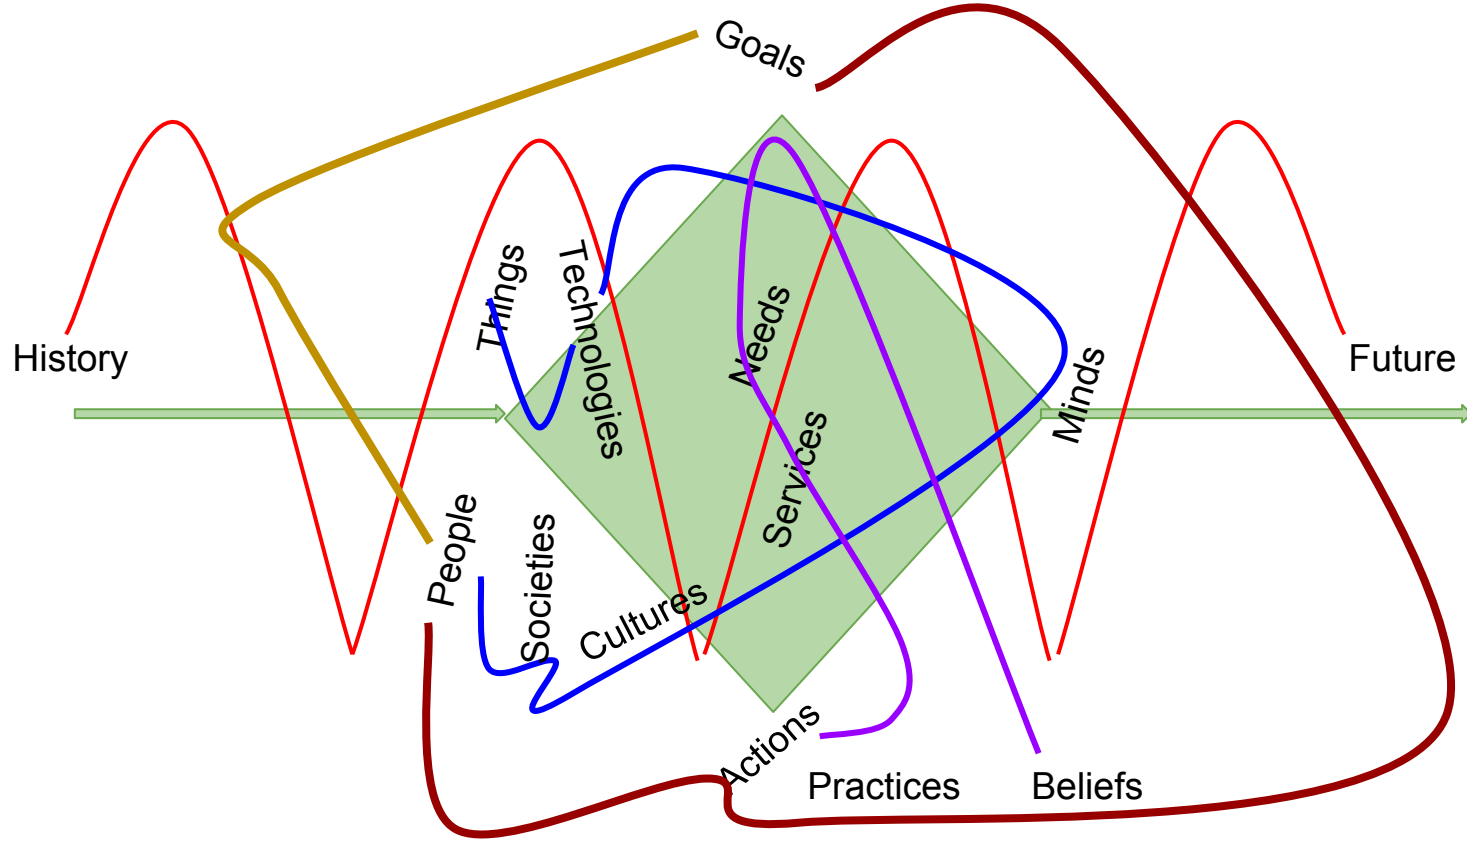

Development and research creates technologies and minds start following and it impacts cultures and societies which organizations are part of.

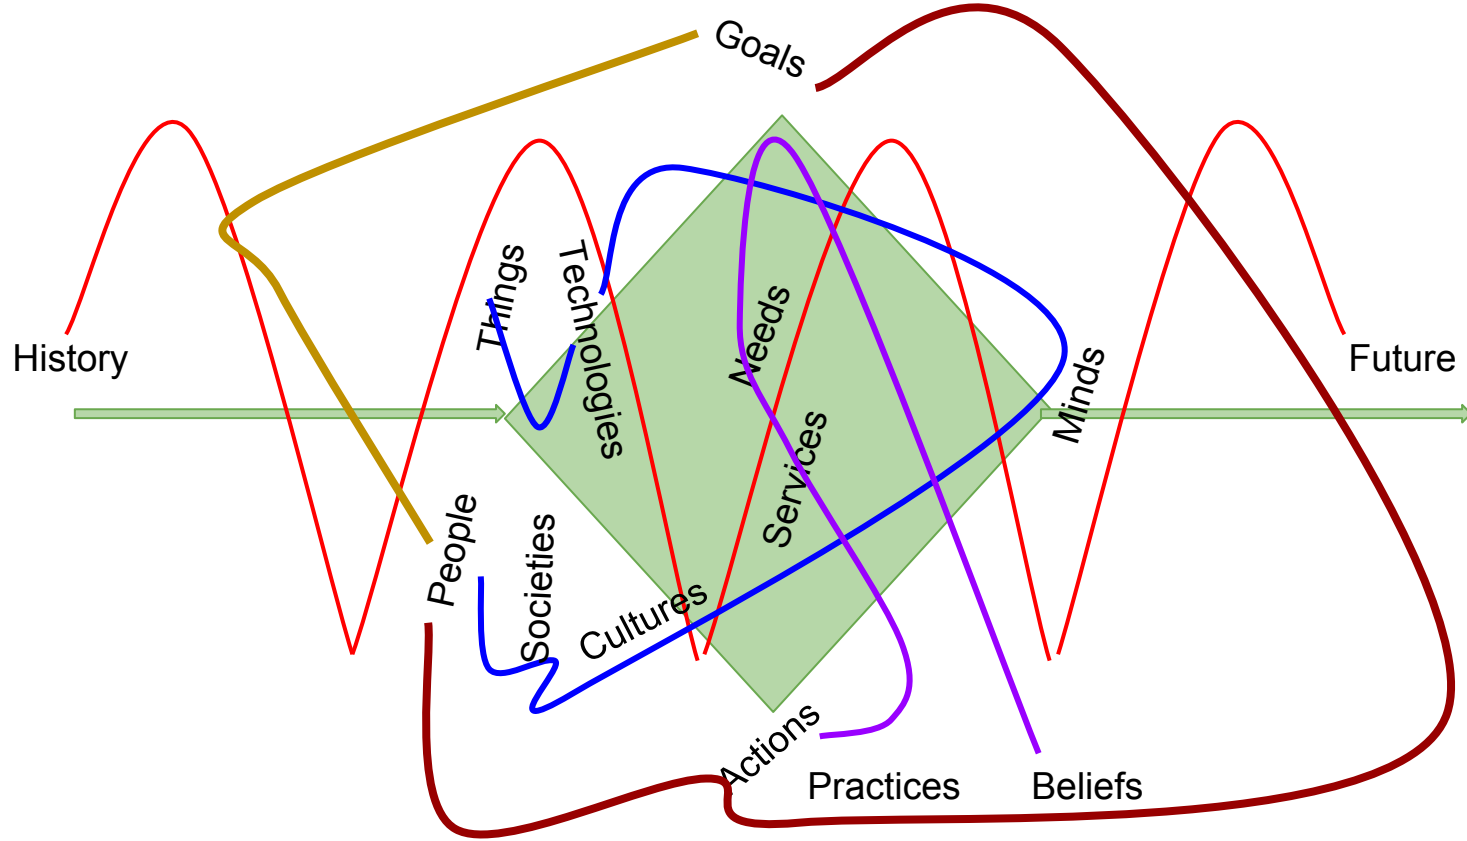

People start driving goals.

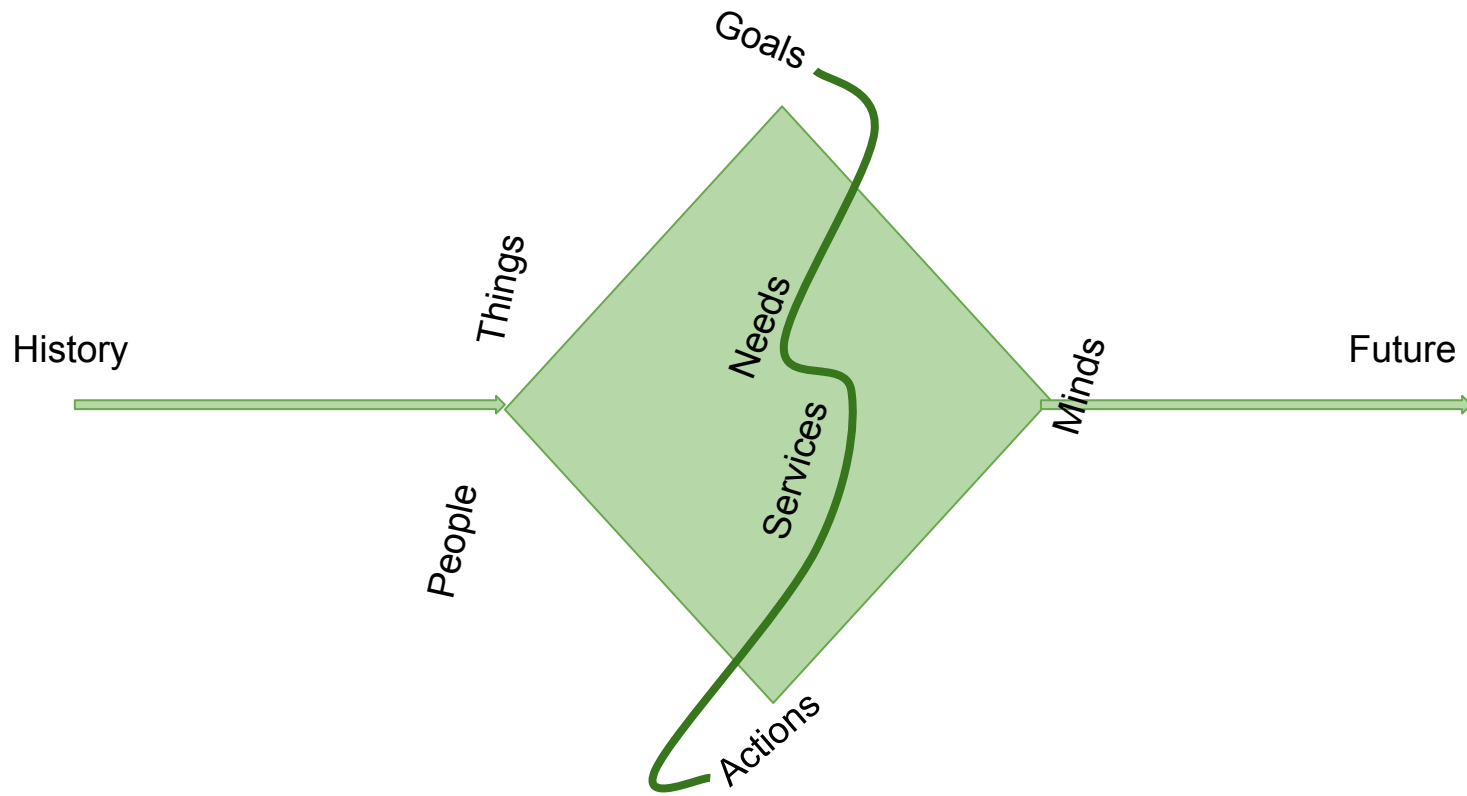

People rush in actions that become practices/beliefs and influence goals.

Beliefs become needs and start influencing goals, services and actions.

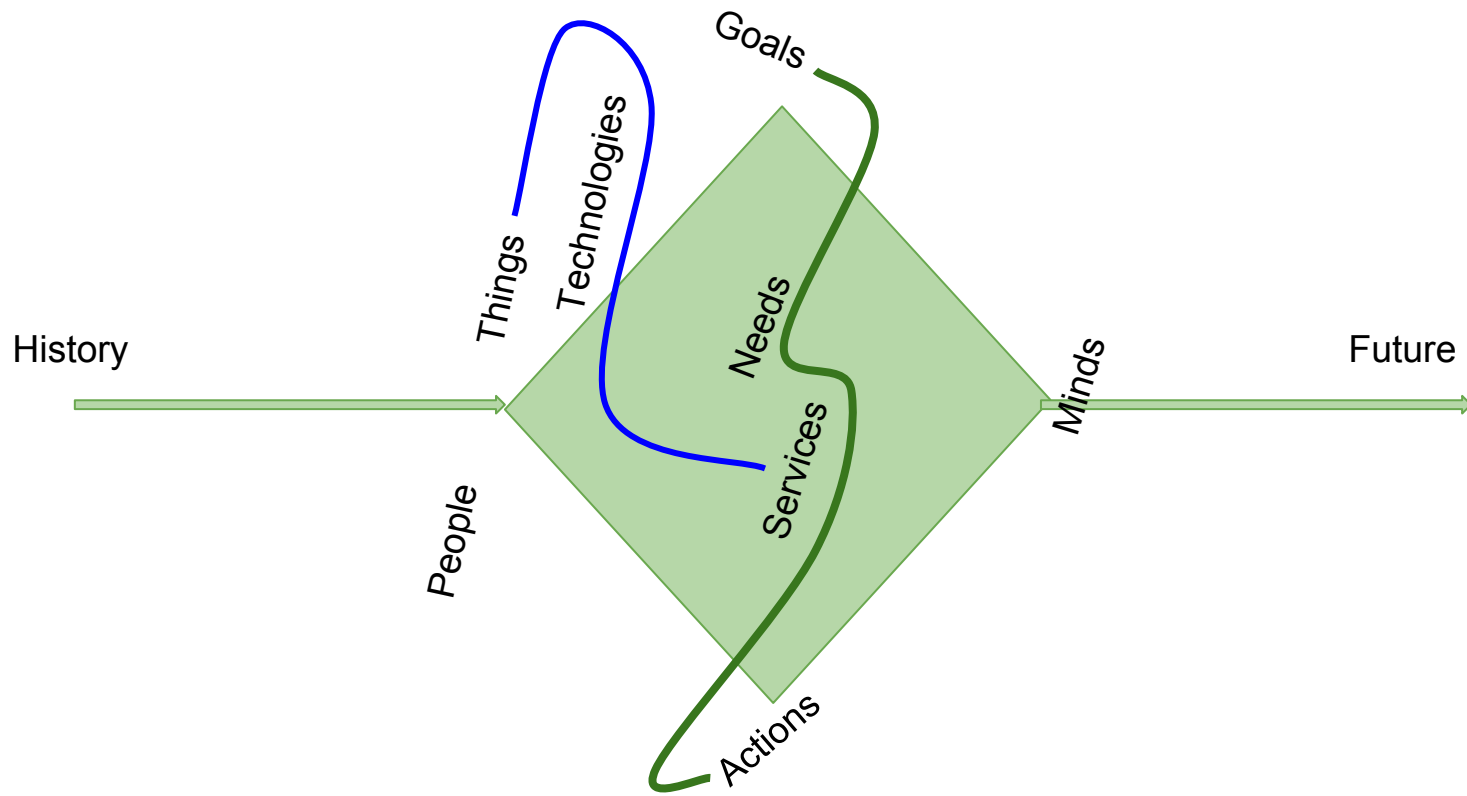

Organizations and Groups become convoluted driving out of control societies.

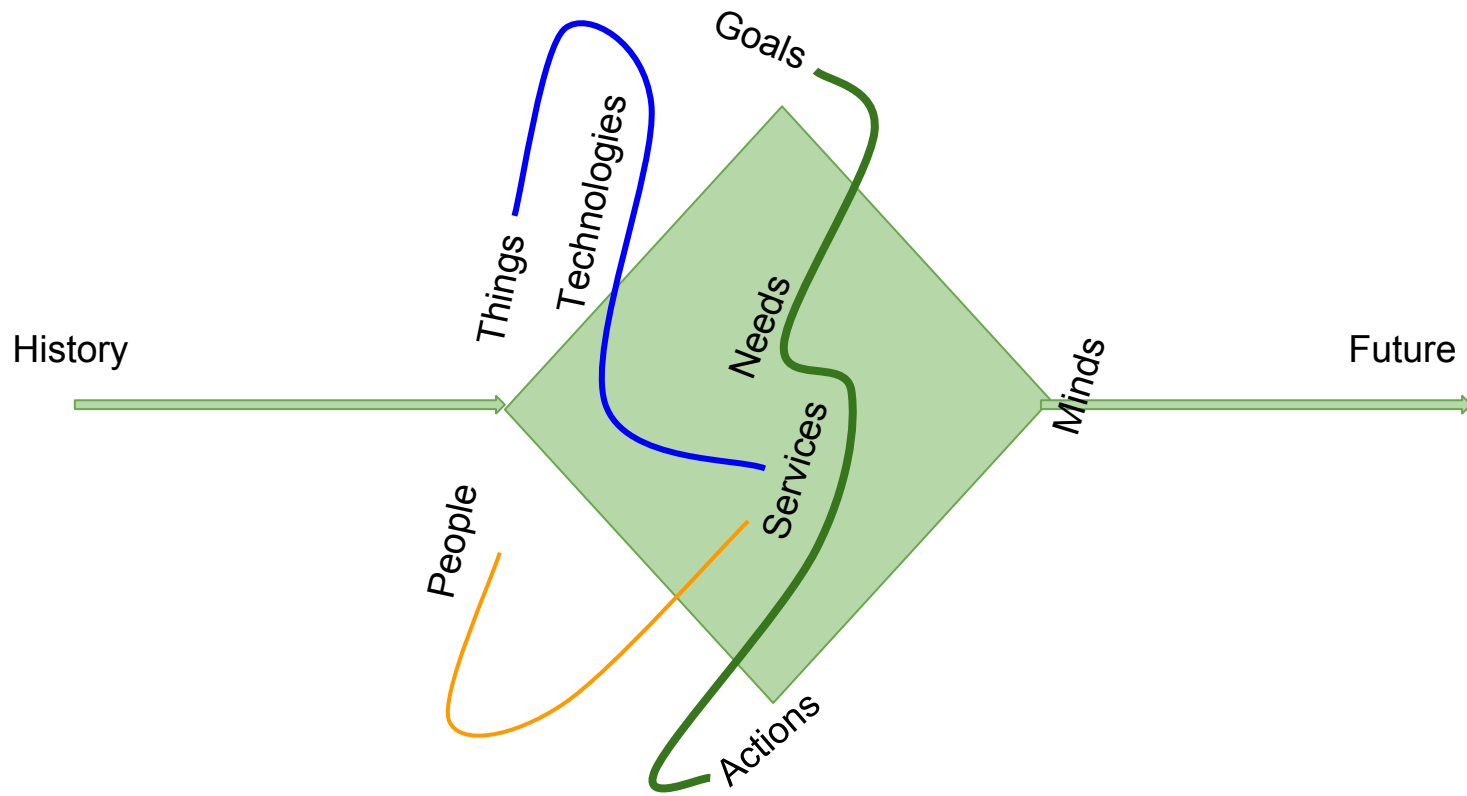

In a properly governed system, Needs drive goals and services that become actions

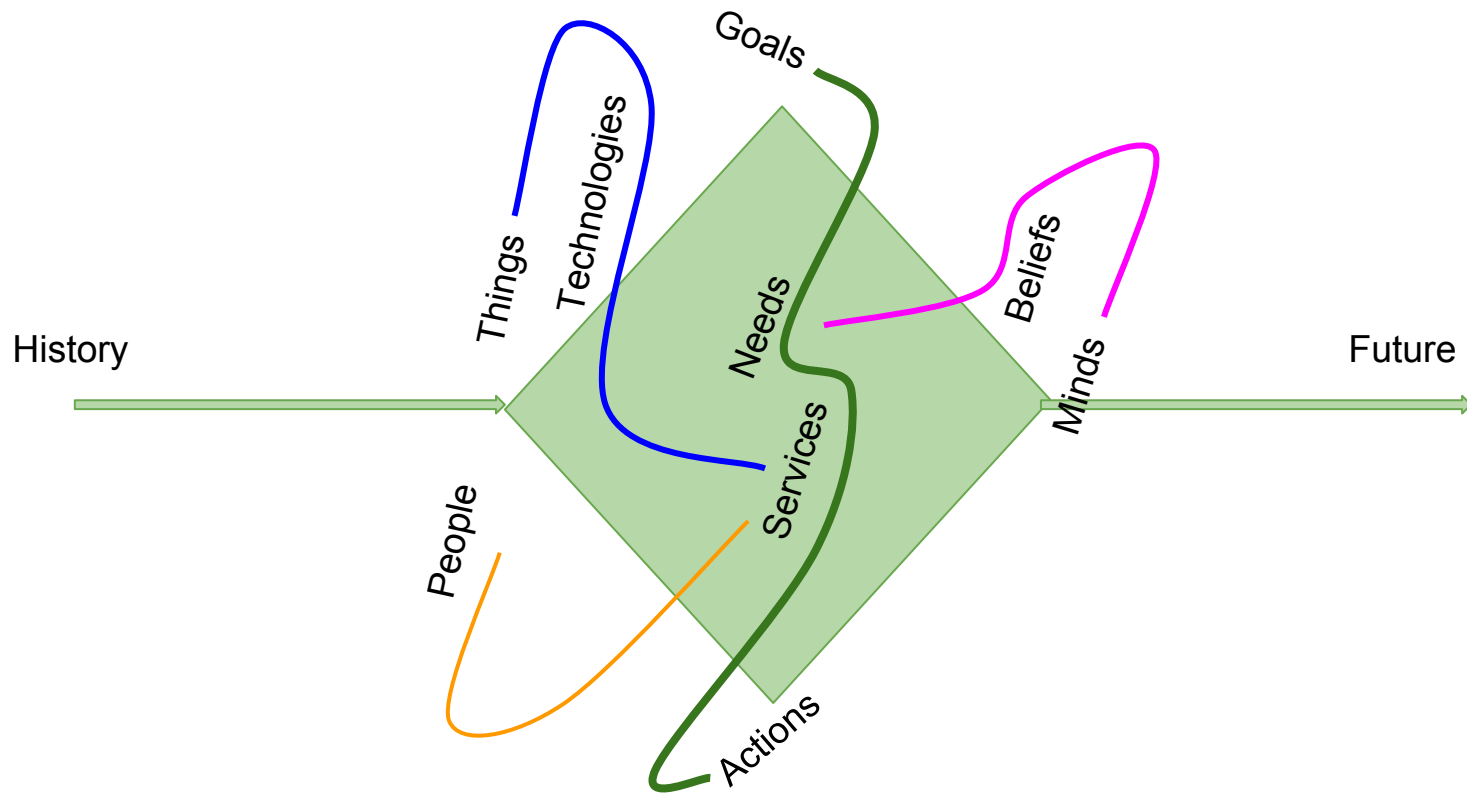

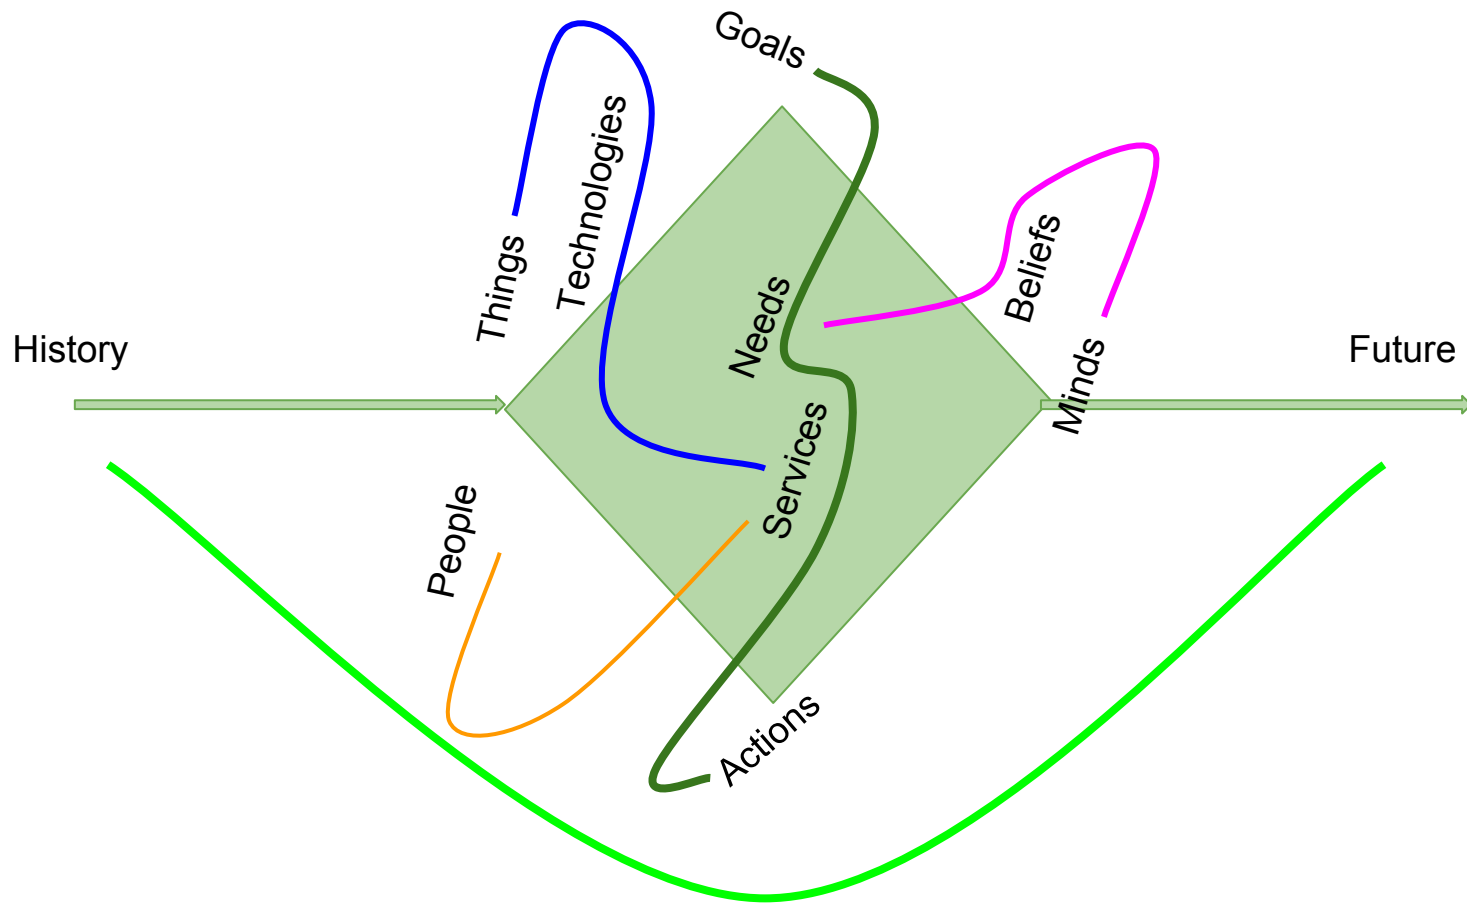

Things are researched to create technologies that support services.

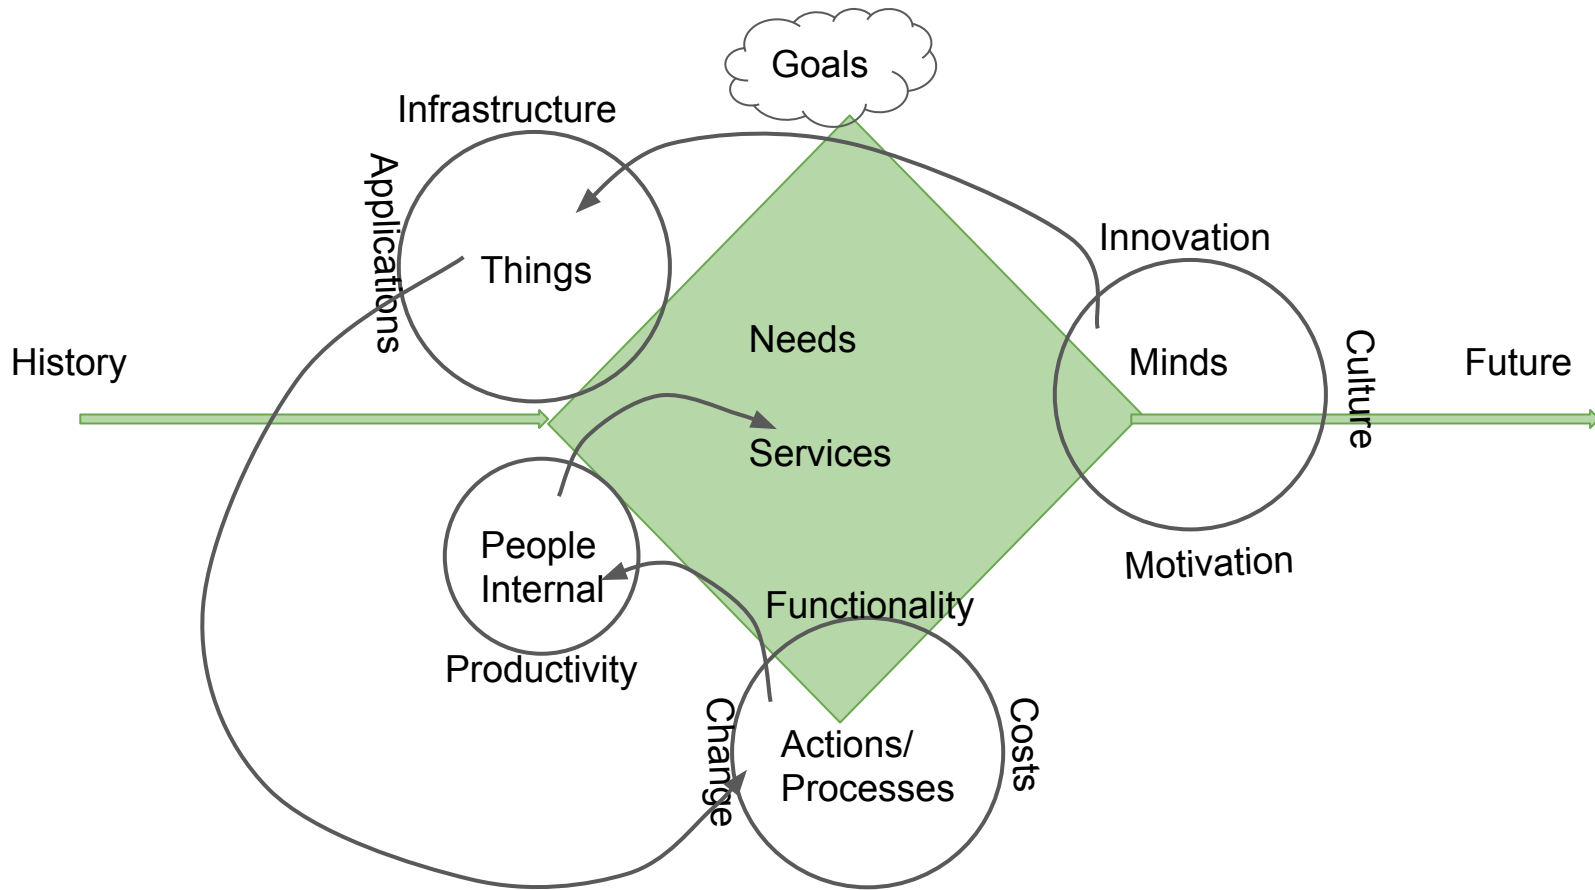

People consume services and align themselves with.

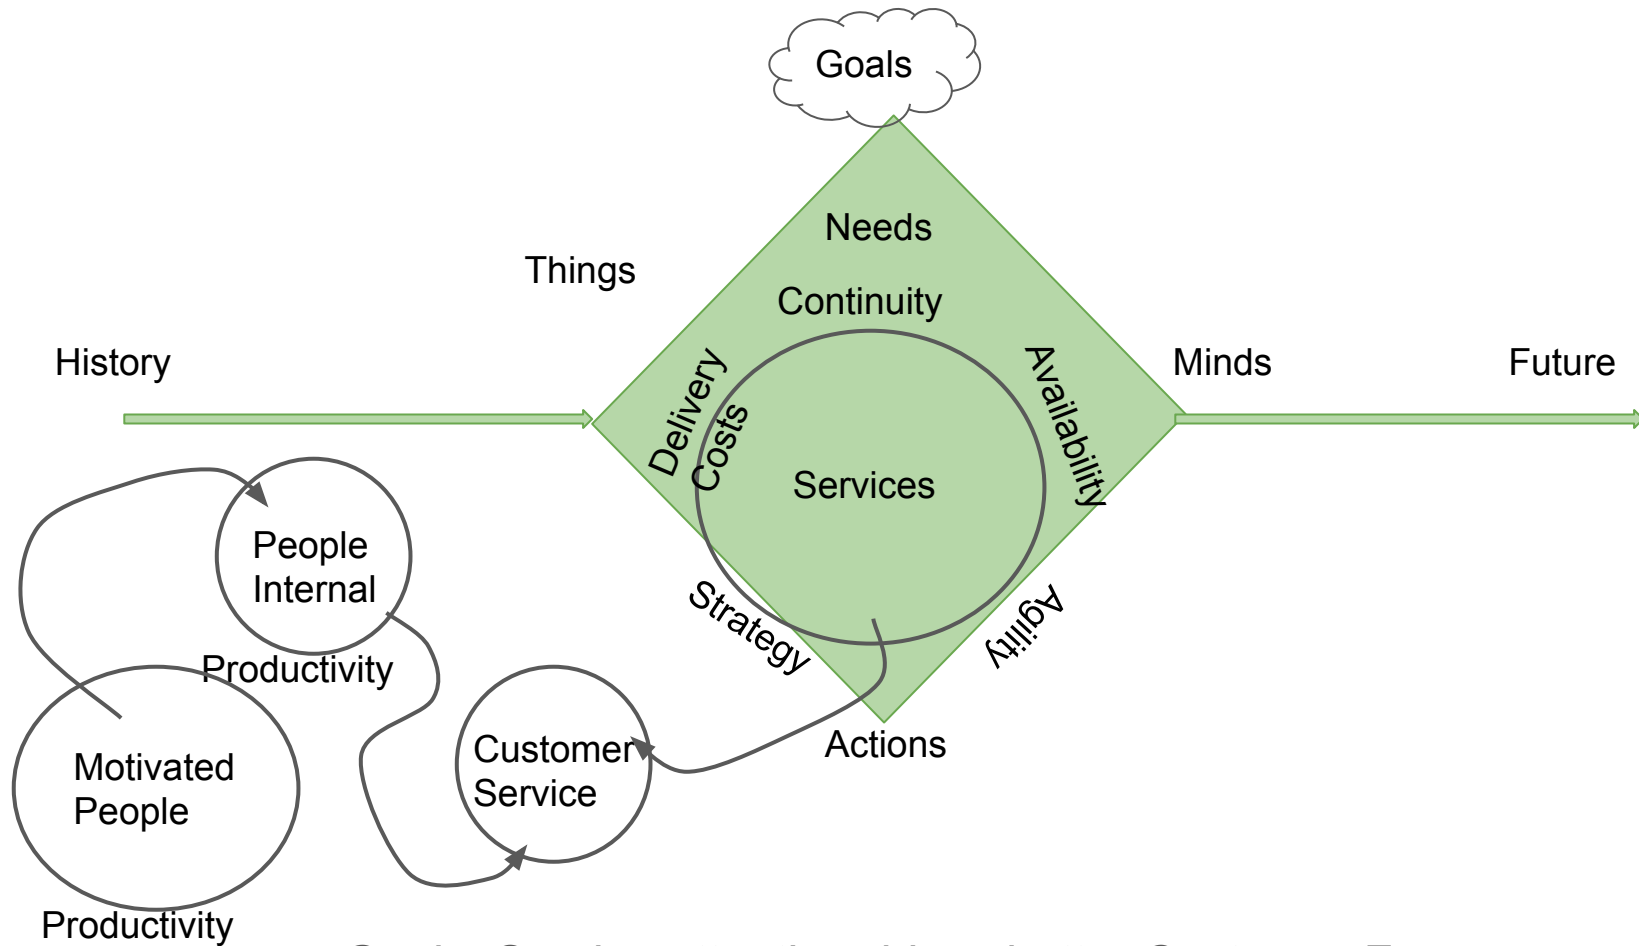

Minds and beliefs align with real needs.

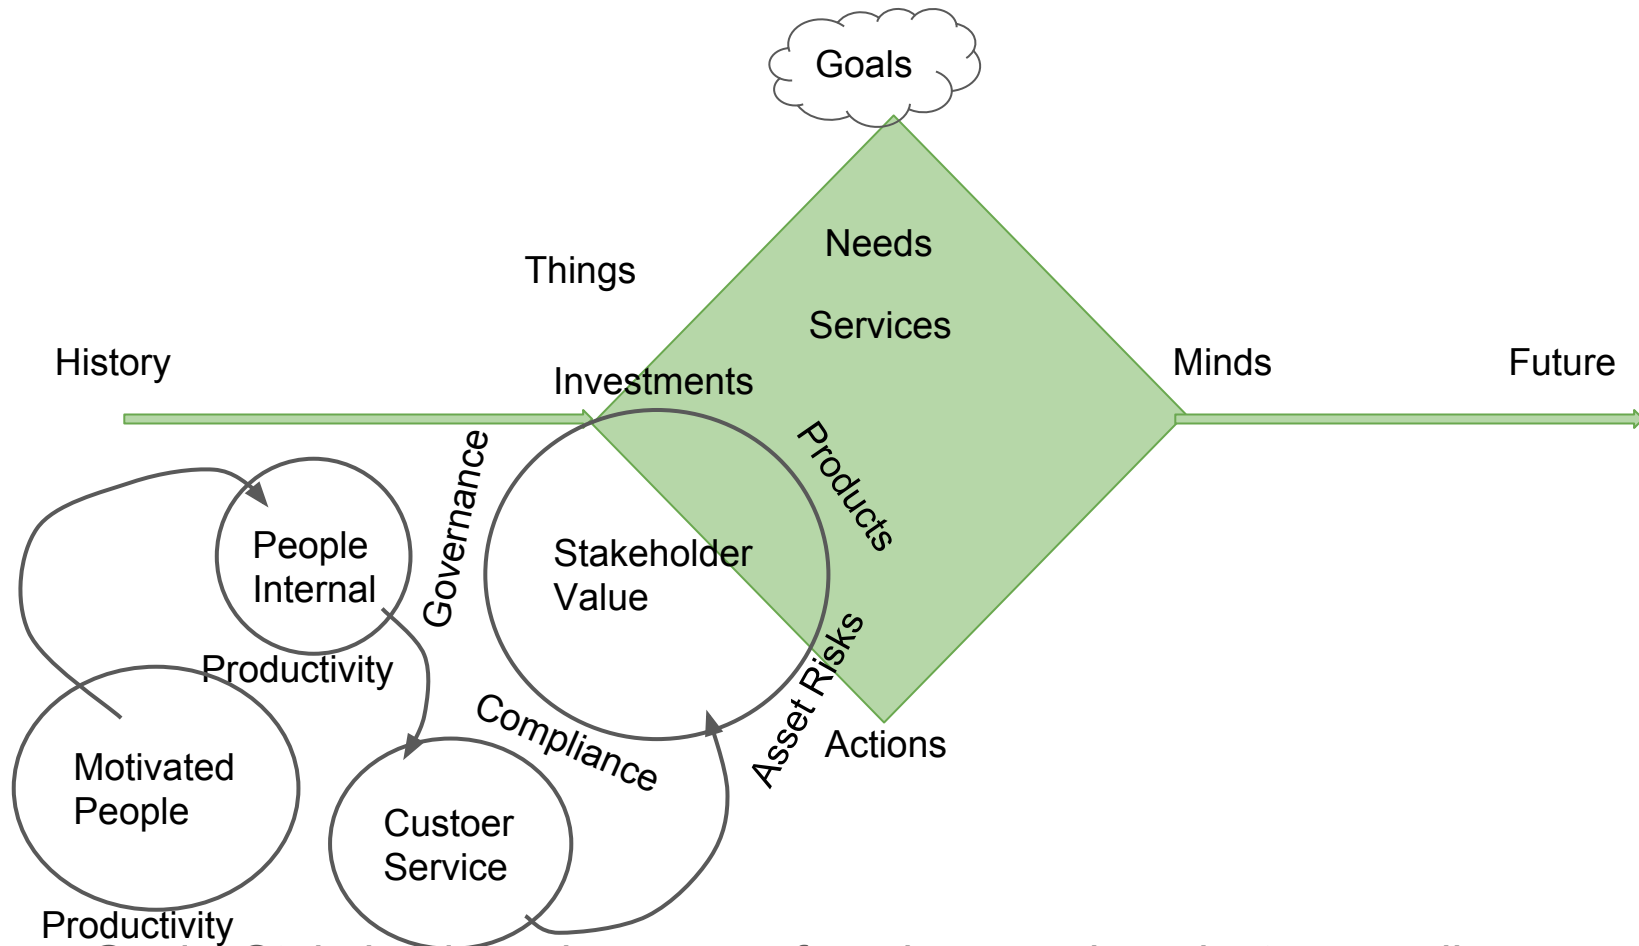

And arc of history intrinsically goes smooth.

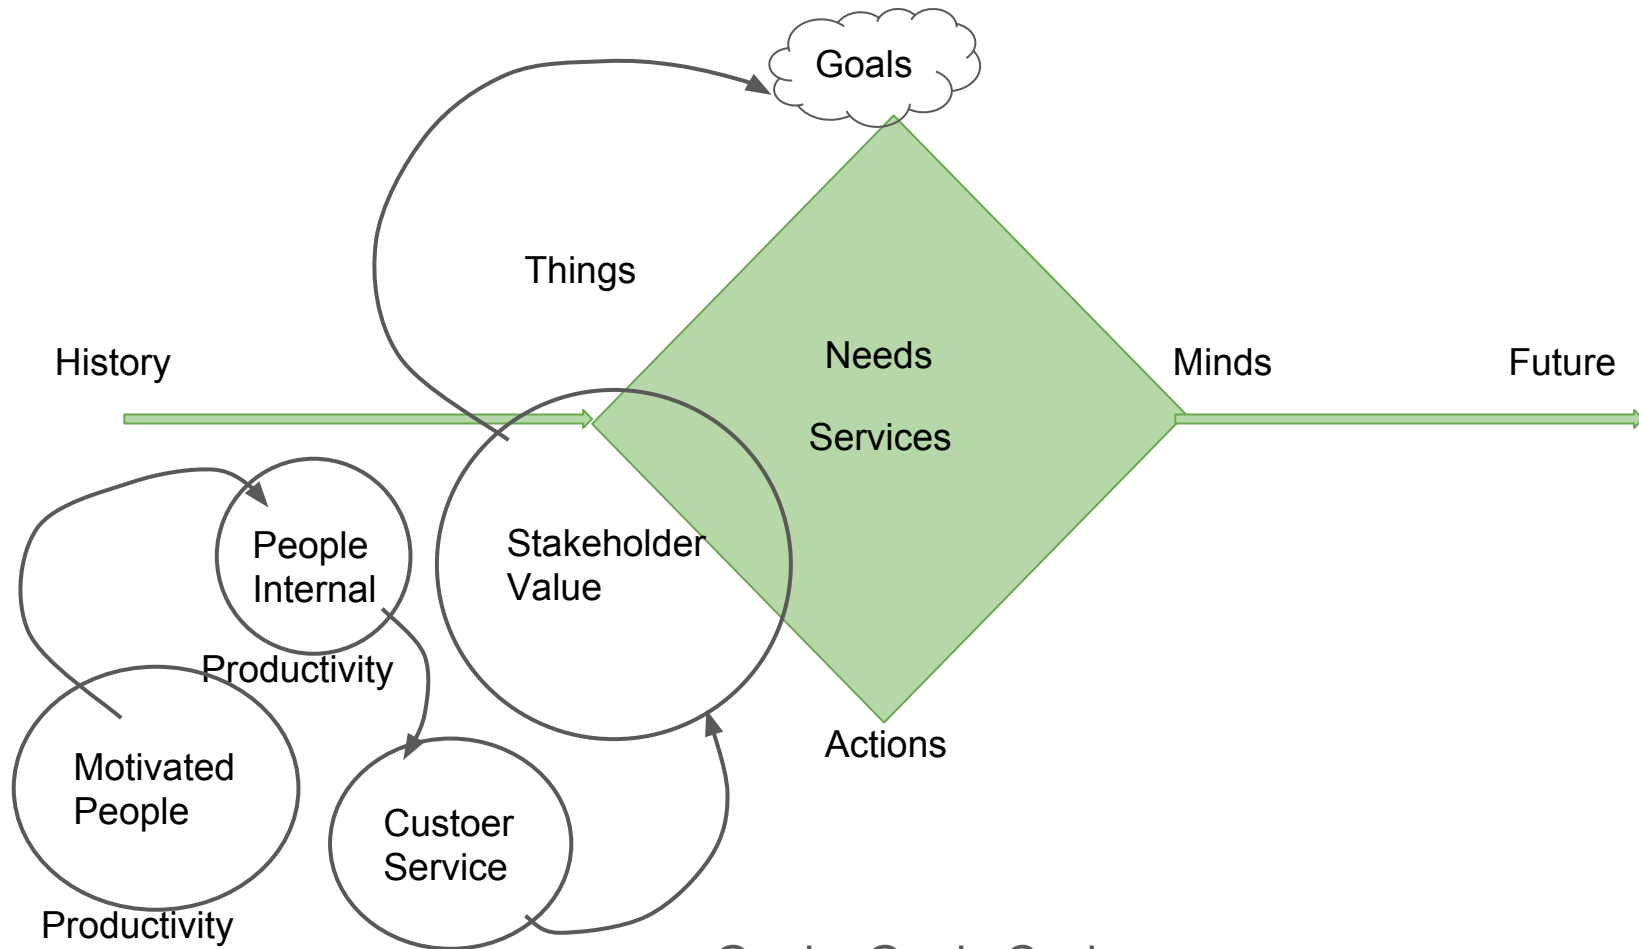

Goals: Motivation and culture drive Innovation & Productivity

Goals: Service attention drives better Customer Focus

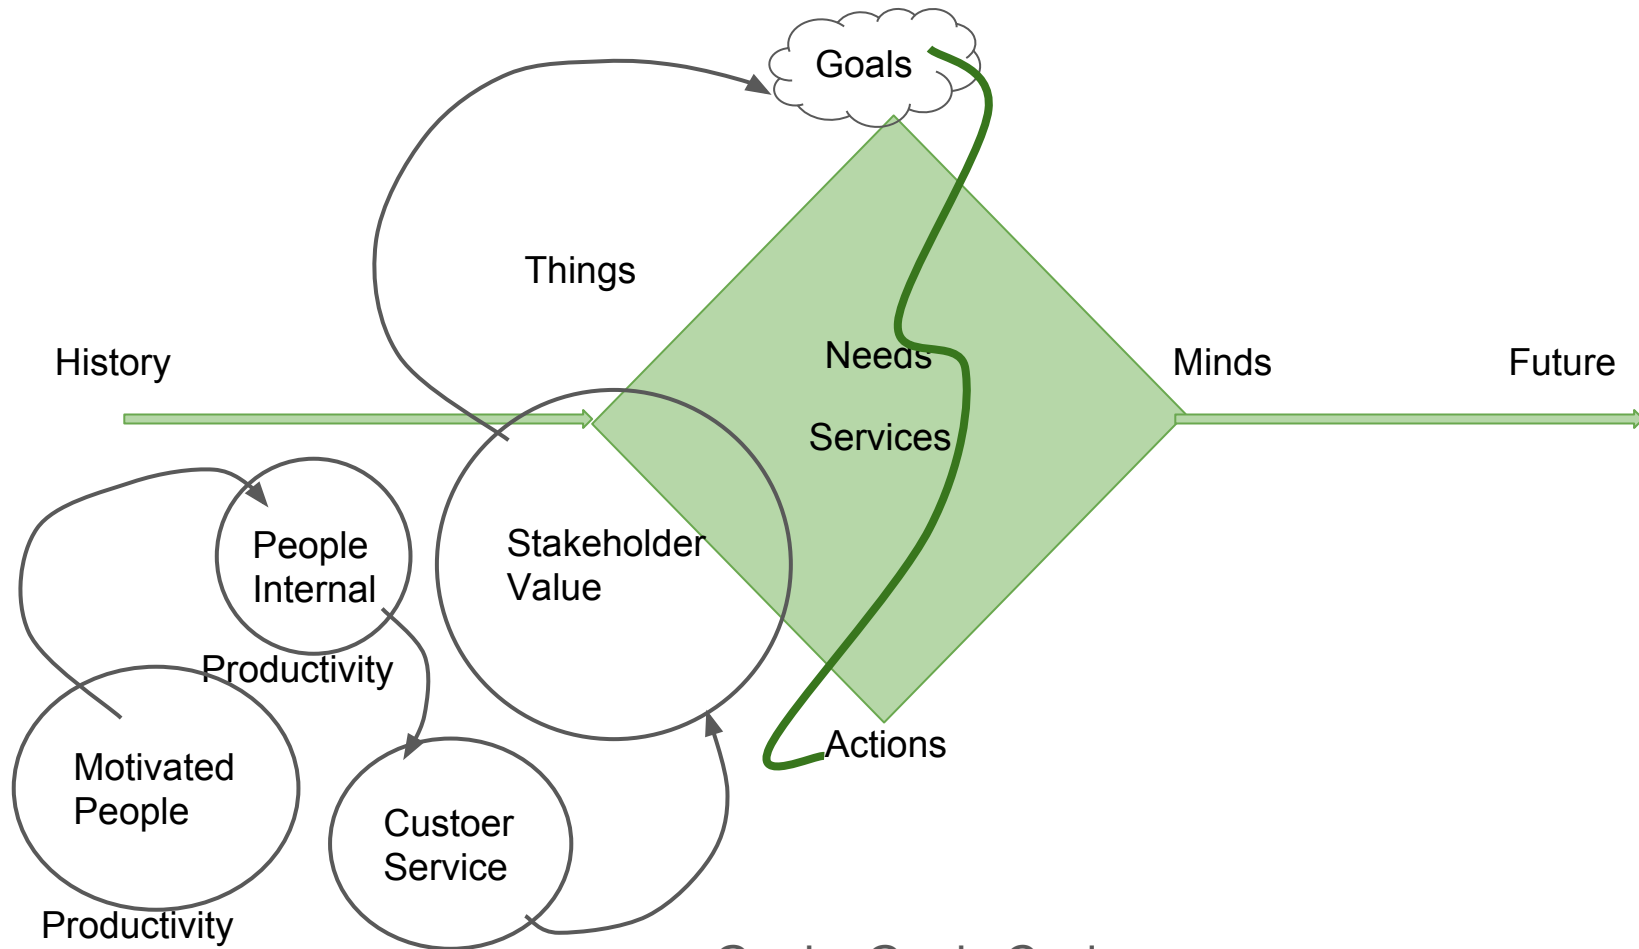

Goals: Stakeholder value comes from improved products, compliance and risk coverage.

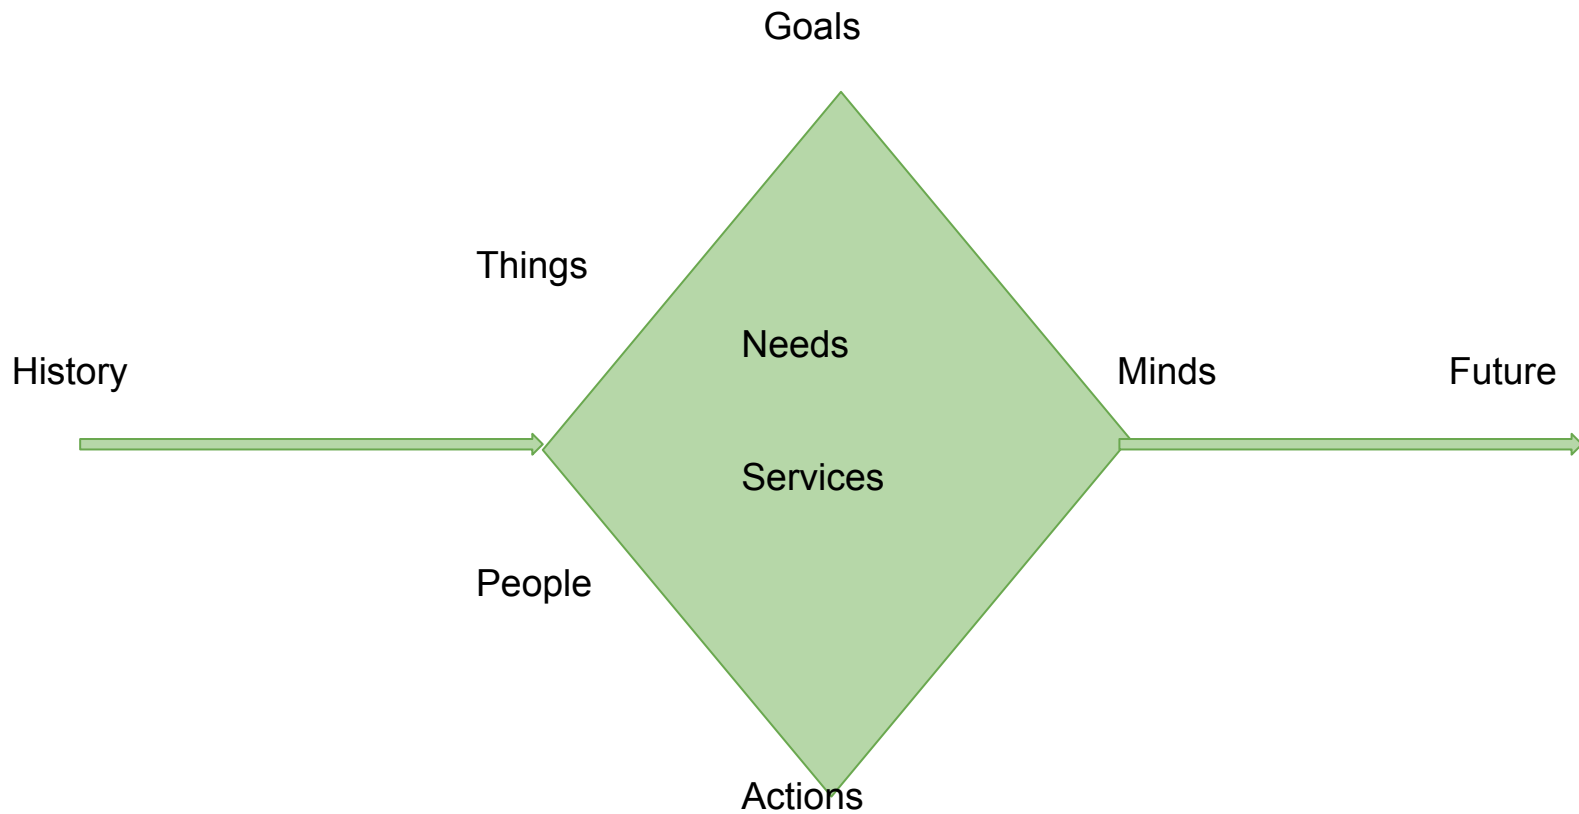

Goals: Goals Cycle

Goals: Goals Cycle

Actions is primarily Operations